Special to the Gazette.

CANYON GLENWOOD SPRINGS, August 19.—Capt. Dodge arrived here yesterday afternoon after a hard ride of thirty-six hours. On our arrival here we went into camp on the outskirts of the town. Strict military discipline is maintained. Lieut. Dana has been appointed quartermaster of the command in charge of the expedition and A. G. Draper of our company has been appointed commissary sergeant. Lieut. Dana has already issued rations to the troops for three days. Gen. Merritt has ordered all troops to the front this morning. Gen. Merritt will have all horses shod and everything in readiness for the campaign. The reports concerning the where-abouts and actions of the Indians are of a very meagre nature, and the wildest kinds of rumors are in circulation.

DENVER, August 19.—A Glenwood Springs special to the News says: Indians are everywhere in the vicinity of the intelligence brought in by the White River. For the last two days they have done no serious damage to any one, and as intimated in the News yesterday Frank Kendall was ambushed—scouted and is safe at home. When he gets out to arrest Jack and Hog Frank, the Ute Indians who are wanted for grand larceny, he will have another and it is probable an even more difficult task. Paul Foote, the scout who came in with Kendall in his first expedition against the Utes, was sworn before Justice of the Peace Wood today and sworn out a warrant for Colorow's arrest.

PREPARING FOR THE CAMPAIGN.

The day has been an extremely dull one here, the time being taken up with arranging for the departure of the main body of troops which occurred at 1 o'clock this morning. The Arapahoe volunteers who style themselves the Arapahoe Independents, left at 8 o'clock today for Meeker. There are fifty in the party, which is under the command of Captain Hooper, and they look as though they might be able to distinguish themselves if given an opportunity. The troops paraded about all day, being encamped just outside of town. The horses were shod, the pack animals packed and the thousand and one things necessary to equip the men on the trip in good condition arranged successfully. All is now ready and the bugle will sound for the start to the hostile field in about an hour. The main body of troops will be preceded by the corps of scouts, and they expect to reach Meeker, 45 miles distant, by tomorrow evening. The officers of the staff, which has been augmented by the arrival of Col. Bob Morrison, will leave about 8 o'clock and will overtake the command. The commissary stores, which have been bought the troops here, will arrive tonight and proceed directly General West has instructed the correspondents who accompany the expedition to share the officers' quarters and fare. The men have been supplied with everything necessary and are very well equipped for the long march and service before them. I walked up to the camp of the four companies here today and looked at some of the animals which are supposed to carry them through the campaign. The beasts certainly do not look as if they were intended for battle charges or appreciated the possibilities of the expedition before them. The Denver boys have fair animals; at least they seem to have been when they started. They are a dejected set and of the boys don't have to walk a mile they will be fortunate. One of four young men tried off a gun this evening to accustom his charger to the sound, and the result was disastrous for him. It started a big crowd of people and got buried in the guard house. Captain Lawson has got his company pretty well in hand, and the men look as though they were determined to do something.

NEWS FROM THE FRONT.

Mr. J. M. Bell, county attorney of Routt county, arrived here to-night on private business. He left his home Tuesday and covered the 45 miles to Wolcott in a day. He says that the people of his county are very much alarmed at the situation

Indians Near Meeker.

DENVER, August 19.—A Glenwood Springs special to the Evening Times says: A courier named H. Van Murphy came in from Newcastle last night and stated that a courier had arrived from Meeker, leaving there yesterday at forty. The courier's mission was to notify a row outfit down the river that a party of Indians supposed to be Southern Utes and Navajos has been seen approaching the vicinity of Meeker. The messenger also stated to Van Murphy that scouts had been sent out, and there may about four hundred Indians in the vicinity of Meeker and the troops who started here to day are looked for by the Meeker people to arrive this morning. Captain Goslin's company were nine miles up Elk creek when met by the messenger. Sheriff Hooper's volunteer company will leave here at 3 o'clock.

Moving for Meeker.

DENVER, August 19.—An Evening Times special from Glenwood Springs, Aug. 19th, says: There are about two hundred men here now who will probably go on to Meeker this afternoon, taking the wagon road which extends down the Grand to Elk creek, thence up to the head of that stream and over the ridge to White River. A Times reporter arrived in town last night from Meeker. He says there is considerable excitement there. Kendall was furnished with many delicacies and knew almost as much as his employer Tripp about the deals and schemes by which the Electric company secured its monopoly. Tripp himself is a fine worker to move Congressional matters, and said to have stood as agent at the state capital for the notorious Addison Jam-bust Smalley, who was recently legislated against. Tripp is now in England trying to float among British capitalists a gigantic land and mining scheme from Arizona. When Tripp left on his errand Sheridan lost his position, and being improvident, somewhat dissipated and talkative when in liquor, was easily fallen into the hands of the Ute Commissioners and Indians. Among other things Sheridan gave up the startling information that $200,000 of the stock of the company was distributed to members of the city council to secure the passage of the franchise. There is a bare possibility that Sheridan is not accurately but has escaped the country. Mrs. Meeker, wife of the Ute Indians' association has now the entering wedge. Other deals are under headway. It is asserted positively that pay dirt has been struck in the street car franchises obtained by Charles T. Yerkes, and that inquiries in this direction are being pressed with vigor.

A Denial.

CHICAGO, August 19.—The announcement that Senator Henry Sherman is seriously pressing to be used to be the head of the Democratic ticket in Ohio next fall is denied by Sherman's friends. Senator Sherman has been in Chicago several days, and has been in consultation with a number of the Chicago board of trade men. Sheridan was the Illinois secretary, and considered one of the best men in the state. Tripp, the general manager of the Chicago Sectional Underground Electric company, a concern which secured practically no experience without monopolies of the underground wire conduit rights in all cities of this city, a franchise enormously valuable and now worked in a still greater body, the so called gas trust. His disappearance is understood to be all of a piece with the business of several months ago, when the Citizens' association employed a number of lawyers and detectives to search for damning evidence against the council ring that had so long and so basely misused its official position for private profit. A great deal of evidence has been collected, and one of the first witnesses to be called for the next grand jury was Sheridan. He has not been seen since Wednesday, and report has it he is being secured by the authorities to be produced when wanted. Sheridan was furnished with many delicate clues and knew almost as much as his employer Tripp about the deals and schemes by which the Electric company secured its monopoly. Tripp himself is a fine worker to move Congressional matters, and said to have stood as agent at the state capital for the notorious Addison Jam-bust Smalley, who was recently legislated against. Tripp is now in England trying to float among British capitalists a gigantic land and mining scheme from Arizona. When Tripp left on his errand Sheridan lost his position, and being improvident, somewhat dissipated and talkative when in liquor, was easily fallen into the hands of the Ute Commissioners and Indians. Among other things Sheridan gave up the startling information that $200,000 of the stock of the company was distributed to members of the city council to secure the passage of the franchise. There is a bare possibility that Sheridan is not accurately but has escaped the country. Mrs. Meeker, wife of the Ute Indians' association has now the entering wedge. Other deals are under headway. It is asserted positively that pay dirt has been struck in the street car franchises obtained by Charles T. Yerkes, and that inquiries in this direction are being pressed with vigor.

New York, August 19.—Six enthusiastic meetings were held last night by socialists at which Henry George and Dr. McGlynn were roundly denounced. A reporter asked Alexander Bonas, the socialist leader, what he thought of the situation. "Sedgeogr wants to call it the farmer vote does he? Doesn't he know that 40,000 farmers out in Ohio could not pay their taxes last year and were sold out by the sheriffs. George cannot head-wing the farmers. They can never understand his theories. To catch them he wants to throw us overboard. We are the toughest. If we are thrown out bodily we will be ten times stronger than when we went in."

Dr. Marcus Merkin is the founder of the socialists. He made this statement: "The socialists will never peddle their own cause and will never have anything in common with the united labor party. The next step logically must be the elimination of all that was for the interest of labor in the platform of the united labor party, even down to the very name of the party itself. It must not be called the united labor party any more. Half of the workingmen will no longer belong to it."

Wm. A. Wallace, who was the organizer of the united labor party of the seventh assembly district, said: "It looks too much like machine politics. Henry George's partisans, Crosswaite, the lawyer, Post, his son Henry George, Jr., his priest, Dr. McGlynn, and his lieutenants are running the Syracuse convention. The many hoped song of victory won't sound it."

Fatal Accident on a Steamer.

HOBOKEN, N. J., August 19.—The new North German Lloyd steamer Trave, from Bremen, met with a serious accident this forenoon while making her pier in this city. There was a ring alongside the large ship when suddenly her bow swung around and crushed into the lower portion of the pier, tearing away the entire roof. A part of the shed fell up on the bow of the ship, striking several of the steerage passengers and two or three of the crew. A number of passengers had their heads cut open and are believed to be fatally injured. A panic ensued on board the ship, and the officers had great difficulty in restoring order.

The Trave carried 200 cabin and 900 steerage passengers. The entire lower portion of the dock is gone. Soon after the accident a large crowd gathered and surrounded the dock. Great excitement prevailed. The names of the injured persons could not be ascertained. Several women passengers fainted when the accident occurred. Captain Willingerod of the Trave attributes the accident solely to the strong current.

HALIFAX, August 19.—The race between the yachts Genesta and Dunsil, sailed this forenoon for the challenger cup, was won by the Genesta, although the latter sailed her at the close one hundred yards.

FOUND DEAD.

The Body of a Man Found a Few Miles from Fountain

With Every Evidence of His Having Committed Suicide.

His Identity Unknown and Only a Matter of Conjecture.

Articles Found on His Person Which May Settle the Matter.

Yesterday morning Mr. Ed O'Connell, a rancher living near Fountain, arrived in the city with the intelligence that the body of a man had been found in the hills near his ranch. He could give no information as to the identity of the man or the circumstances which produced his death. Coroner Davis was at once summoned by telephone, and came over to this city immediately.

In company with an escort he left for Fountain about 2 o'clock for the purpose of securing the remains, and investigating the causes of the man's death. When he arrived at Fountain he ascertained that the body lay on the summit of a hill about five miles northeast of the village, and embraced in what is known as Callaway's ranch. After driving through several gates he arrived at the place where the man lay.

When he arrived on the spot a horrible and disgusting sight met his eyes. The body of a man above the medium height and weighing nearly two hundred pounds lay upon the ground with the face downward. His head was lying in a large pool of blood, and on either side of him were two pools of blood, larger and larger as that in which his face was lying. [illegible] the large wounds of which were open and stained with blood.

It was impossible to distinguish his features, as the body had eaten away all the flesh on his face leaving only the teeth and a portion of his [illegible]. The body was in a state of decomposition and bloated exceedingly. [illegible] to three days and weather for four or five days. The man was dressed in a suit consisting of coat, vest and pants, with a dark gray cassimere. He wore a black felt hat and had on a pair of boots. On his person the [illegible] found a silver open faced watch, valise keys, a new razor, $2.63 in currency, a pocket book in which there was no money which led to his identification and four [illegible] bills of the Pike's Peak express company on August 14th. On one of the slips of paper which had been discovered, in some way, was the following address: W. J. Davis, Stafford, Mo. Ford county.

The remains were placed in a coffin and brought to this city where Coroner Davis arrived at 11 o'clock last night. The [illegible] as soon as he arrived at Fountain made diligent inquiries concerning the man. These failed to disclose anything which would throw any light on the matter, and under the circumstances he decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

Of one thing, however, he was positive and that was, that the man had died by his own hand. The appearance and posture of the body plainly indicated this. A razor with a three deep gashes one of which reached from ear to ear. They had evidently been made with the knives, as the blades were dull, and the gashes plainly showed that they had been made with a dull instrument.

After he had inflicted these wounds he changed his position several times until at last he dropped upon his knees, hung his head so that the blood might flow from his throat the more rapidly and died in this posture.

Coroner Davis has two theories regarding the identity of the man. The first is this: Last Sunday evening a man came to Mr Callaway's ranch and asked for something to eat and a place to sleep. He said that he had walked eight miles that day and was about played out. He was told to go to Fountain where he would find hotel accommodations. The people at the ranch did not observe him particularly, but what they do remember of his appearance, tally somewhat with the man found yesterday.

The other theory is based upon the following incident. Over a week ago a ranchman who is running some sheep some fourteen miles east of Fountain announced to some men at the village that he had a man who was herding a flock of sheep for him who was sick and who acted in a very peculiar and apparently insane manner. He stated that he intended to discharge the man and he could find somebody to take his place. Mr. Davis' supposition is that he started to walk to Fountain and that the heat and the want of water had aggravated his malady, and made him partially, if not totally insane. However, he had formed a purpose to commit suicide as in his coat pocket was found a piece of rope three feet in length with a knot tied at both ends. If he had known what he was doing, he would have used the razor which was found in his pocket and which was considerably sharper than the knives which he used.

The ranchman who owns the sheep above alluded to may be able to throw additional light on the affair as soon as he learns of it. The body will be interred in the potters' field in Evergreen cemetery to day.

The governor's special messages on Thursday to the adjutant general are very cool. The Washington of the Denver News on that morning seems, to have had some effect

The state authorities are put in a very awkward position in applying to the general government [illegible] sheriff of Garfield county, the mayor of Meeker and the adjutant general of the state have represented a state of affairs to the governor which does not exist. On the strength of these representations the governor asked help of General Crook, at Omaha. General Crook says there never was any danger, that the Utes are all on the reservations except Colorow and a small band. In the east Colorado will occupy a very humiliated position, Eastern people who read the correspondence with the general government will conclude that we are either very cowardly or else that we are willing to plunge the frontier into a bloody war for pecuniary gain.

One of the members of the committee of the board of trade alluded to by John Evans in his interview with the News which we quoted yesterday enquired if the interview was correct. He said he had no intention to reflect on him, etc. We did not suppose [illegible] and we [illegible] take the trouble [illegible] this. The article was only published as a newspaper to show how Evans [illegible] Sunday's [illegible] things. It is pretty well known [illegible] the Weekly whole [illegible] in any [illegible] if the [illegible] he feels personally offended [illegible] a little [illegible] by [illegible] in [illegible] of [illegible] Evans [illegible] Lady [illegible] of [illegible] this [illegible] article [illegible] in which he [illegible] by the [illegible] who will [illegible] this is entirely unsolicited for and unauthorized.

From a special dispatch from Rawlins, Wyoming, which [illegible] in yesterday's [illegible] that the [illegible] has been brought on by the [illegible] of cattlemen as Meeker, headed by Sheriff Kendall. The [illegible] who acted on the [illegible] which runs between Meeker and Rawlins [illegible] that [illegible] fears of trouble were [illegible] Kendall at Meeker when they left and that the Utes did not desire but [illegible] that if Sheriff Kendall had used the judgment, tact [illegible] trying to talk to the Indians, there would have been no trouble, and he would not have [illegible] about it. A letter from Mr. Symon Major, a prominent merchant of Meeker, received at Rawlings corroborates the above. He says that it is the whites and not the Utes who have got on the war path. He [illegible] Sheriff Kendall solely for his action, and holds him responsible for the trouble.

We are very glad to see the News and Republican come out so squarely against the military taking the field and also for their censure of the efforts of a few people on the frontier to get up an Indian war. But would it not have been better for these papers to have spoken earlier? The Denver News is practically to blame for the present condition of things. With a great flourish of trumpets, it announced it had sent a correspondent to the field who would give accurate information. This correspondent sent a quantity of inflammable stuff via telegraph to the News which at first aroused public opinion. Finally his telegrams became so absurd that no intelligent person thought any of his statements accurate. As late as Thursday he published what he called "exclusive news" and we are sure any respectable newspaper will [illegible] the News the exclusive publication of it, that eight hundred Indians were massed about Meeker, and that runners had been sent to nearly all the tribes within one thousand miles to join in the war. It is on the strength of newspaper publications that public sentiment has required and almost compelled the governor to call out the state troops. The newspapers are made to blame [illegible] the governor for this. We realized it when we were publishing some of the incendiary dispatches and have warned the public from the beginning against believing them.

At a recent meeting of the National Association of Scientists in New York several papers were read on the subject of connecting the two oceans at the Isthmus of Panama. Three general routes were considered. First, the Panama canal which has been promoted by De Lesseps. Already three hundred and fifty millions have been expended on this canal and it is only one fifth completed. It is believed that this scheme will be a failure. The ship railway projected by Captain Eads was likewise declared impracticable. The only scheme considered feasible was the Nicaragua canal. Engineer Peary read a paper on this subject. He was under Engineer Menocal, United States navy, who finished the survey of this route in 1885. By this route the distance from ocean to ocean will be 165.8 miles. Of this distance only 40.8 miles will require the building of the canal. The other 125.5 miles is [illegible] navigation through Lake Nicaragua, the river San Juan, and the valley of the [illegible] River. The French [illegible] estimated cost of this canal is sixty-four millions of dollars. It is thought it will take six years to [illegible] canal was in the beginning the most popular route, but the French have demonstrated that it is not a feasible route at the expense of three hundred and fifty millions. We should thank the French for this. We have the advantage of the experience of Eads, last ten years of experiments and we have also abundance of means. A connection between the two oceans may be necessary some time for the preservation of the union. The government ought therefore to go ahead and do the work. An expense of sixty-four or even one hundred millions distributed through six years would not be felt in this country.

The feud in the New South, which was supposed to contain so much foreboding of the past and so much hope for the future, is not so comfortably stenographistic as we could wish. There seems to be a very persistent effort to interfere with the colored schools. This is done both by the withdrawal of the appropriations and by embarrassment of the teachers. Mr. Councill was principal of the Alabama State Normal and Industrial school at Huntsville, Alabama. He was thrown out of a [illegible] car on the southern railroad a few months ago. The trouble growing out of this has led him to offer his resignation as principal of the above school. In his letter of resignation, he gives the following explanation of the car episode.

"The reason that I, with [illegible] of my race, was put [illegible] who [illegible] leaving the city entered the "first class" car on the St. Louis and Nashville railroad at [illegible], on June 5th for the purpose of [illegible] social equality," has called [illegible] unjust and [illegible] people, the same as to threaten the abolition of this N[illegible] by the next legislature. If I am correctly [illegible] this, for the love I have for my race and the cause of education, I hereby [illegible] my resignation. I have [illegible] act in the [illegible] of my race to [illegible] cost of a [illegible] patronage to be [illegible] and [illegible] by [illegible] for or giving [illegible] stating which the [illegible] of type of Christ [illegible] does not indorse. It is, I trust, [illegible] for me to declare my [illegible] which all [illegible] of June 5, and I point with pride to the [illegible] and [illegible] to the fact that I was not in the [illegible] We [illegible] until [illegible] by the conductor all of this [illegible] that the last [illegible] of Dixie white [illegible] all of my white [illegible] are guilty of this [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]
